Are You
A "Tender Foot"?
Not in the wild western sense, but in the sense of having tender feet. If you are, we want to fit your next pair of Shoes for you. There's a great deal in the way a shoe is first put on and the way the foot settles into it. If it's tight where it should be and loose where it should be, there'll be very little trouble. We make a study of these things. Prices? Of course they're right or we would not sell so many Shoes.

TO DISCUSS THE WAR.

Japanese Parliament to be Convened Immediately for That Purpose.

The Cabinet to be Composed of Men From All the Political Parties.

London, Oct. 15.—Tokio dispatches say an imperial rescript has been issued convoking the Japanese parliament in session at Hiroshima. The session is for the purpose of discussing matters in connection with the existing war. Efforts are being made to have all parliamentary parties and factions represented in the new cabinet by creating additional offices.

The English cruisers Edgar and Spartan have been ordered to China.

A Tientsin dispatch says it is semi-officially announced there that the statement that Japan has rejected Chinese overtures for peace is untrue, inasmuch as China has made no proposals.

A Shanghai dispatch says that Chang, the viceroy of Hukuang, has started for Pekin, whither he has been summoned for an audience with the emperor.

Washington, Oct. 15.—American Consul General Denby at Pekin has cabled the state department saying the reports of danger to foreign residents of Pekin are greatly exaggerated and that there has been only one significant attack upon Americans, and that was followed by prompt punishment. An imperial proclamation was issued enjoining profection of foreigners.

BELGIAN ELECTIONS.

Liberals Lose Thirty-one Seats in the Chamber.

Brussels, Oct. 15.—The latest returns of the parliamentary elections show the Liberals have lost thirty-one seats in the chamber of deputies and these have been gained by the socialists. The Catholics lost seven seats, five of which were captured by the Liberals and two by the socialists. It is impossible at this time to state exactly the ultimate composition of the chamber.

ROMANTIC ELOPEMENT.

Young Couple Succeed After Making Two Attempts.

Richmond, Oct. 15.—The Virginia exposition has had a sensation in the romantic runaway of Miss Mamie Inge, of Blackstone, Va., with W. W. Sanford, of the same place. The young woman was one of the most attractive pupils in the Southside Female Institution, and was here with that body of students to attend the exposition. All the young women had been taken out to see the exposition by Mr. Crindling, their assistant principal. While returning, Sanford, in a carriage, drove through the column of girls and hurried Miss Inge into the vehicle and sped away. The young persons were, however, found later and Sanford restored the girl to the principal upon the assurance that he would not be prosecuted, but to-day they eloped to Washington, where they were arrested. Miss Inge is the daughter of a well known Blackstone merchant and Sanford is the son of a Baptist minister.

CHICAGO'S DEATH RATE.

Claimed That It is the Healthiest City in the World.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Chicago is the healthiest big city in the world, claims Health Commissioner Reynolds, in his report covering the World's Fair year. The death rate upon a basis of a population of 1,600,000, was only 16.9, the lowest of any large city in the world with the possible exception of Berlin. Mr. Reynolds believes that the population of the city was considerably in excess of 1,600,000, and if so the death rate was below 16.9, and lower than that of the German capital. He notes the fact that 2567 bodies were shipped out of the city for burial—bodies of dead who did not belong to Chicago but included in its list and swelling its death rate. More than one-half the deaths in 1893, 13,064, out of the total of 27,083, were of infants and children under six years of age. The enormous preponderance of this mortality of children and infants was due to miasmatic disease.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

News from All Over the World Received by Wire.

Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge has been suspended from communion by the Mt. Horeb church of Kentucky.

There were seven men in the gang that held up the express train on the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac railway on Saturday. They secured $150,000.

Another murder has been added to the long list alleged to have been committed by George Rose alias Thomas Blanck alias Hamilton the murderer of bartender Bridwell of Seattle. It is now said that he killed old man Pickton in Cowlitz valley in 1884. All the mysterious murders committed in Washington are being cleared up by charging them to Blanck.

SIR ALFRED STEPHEN DEAD

The Late Chief Justice of New South Wales Dies in London.

Deceased Also Held Other Important Positions in the Colonies.

London, Oct. 15.—Sir Alfred Stephen, formerly chief justice of New South Wales, is dead.

Sir Alfred Stephen, K. C. M. G., C.B., third son of the late John Stephen, a judge of the supreme court of New South Wales, born in 1802, was educated at the Charterhouse and the grammar school of Honiton, Devon. He was called to the bar in 1823 and appointed a judge of the supreme court of New South Wales in 1839, having previously held for several years the post of solicitor-general and attorney-general of Tasmania. He was chief justice of New South Wales from 1844 till November, 1873; received the honor of knighthood in 1846; was nominated president of the legislative council on its creation in 1856, but resigned in the following year; was created a C. B. in 1862; administered the government of the colony on the retirement of the Earl of Belmore from February 23 to June 2, 1872; was created a K. C. M. G. in 1874; was appointed governor of New South Wales in November, 1875. Sir Alfred was a cousin of the Right Hon. Sir James Stephen and of the late Serjeant Stephen, the author of "Commentaries," whose pupil he was.

SAFETY OF MISSIONARIES.

No Reason to Think That Any Have Been Killed.

New York, Oct. 15.—The Presbyterian board of foreign missions has issued the following: "Frequent letters of enquiry having been received, as to the probable safety of our missionaries in China, Corea and Japan, during the present war, the board would express the belief that in view of the precautions which have been taken by the various western powers including the United States, there is reason to hope that no loss of life or serious trouble will affect our mission circles, though it is possible that some who are in the interior stations may find it prudent to withdraw to the treaty ports. The board will suggest, however, that in view of the delicacy of the situation, both the countries involved being occupied as mission fields, there is great need of prudence on the part of the missionaries, and all newspaper correspondents in the expression of sentiment which may seem to bear a partizan character on a drift of national sympathy and so may irritate any of the parties concerned. An anti-foreign spirit may easily be enkindled or if already existing may be increased. In this matter the safety of commercial as well as religious interest is concerned."

The board was somewhat relieved on Saturday by the receipt of a cable message from Seoul signed by Dr. O. R. Avison, who is in charge of the medical work of that station, announcing that the mission has again assumed control of the royal Corean hospital. Wm. Duller, jr., treasurer of the board, stated that the dispatch indicates that affairs have quieted down, at least in Seoul, and that missionaries are no longer in danger.

PROBABLY DROWNED.

"Gatling Gun" Howard and His Son Lost in the Gulf.

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—"Gatling Gun" Howard and his son left Gaspe a week ago Friday last to cross the gulf to the Labrador coast, where they have a lobster cannery. They have not been heard of since, and as the weather was rough it is feared they have been drowned.

Brief Locals.

—On Thanksgiving day [illegible] there will be a grand Mendelssohn concert.

—Confirmation services were held in the R. E. church yesterday, Right Rev. Bishop Cridge officiating.

—The J. B. A. A. will have a paper chase on Tuesday evening. A good turn out of members is expected.

—This is the last day on which voters can register, and it behooves all who are not on the list to get on.

—At Metropolitan Methodist church yesterday Madame Laird rendered the solo, "Rest in the Lord," from "Elijah," in excellent style.

—Two more than enthusiastic hunters invaded the privacy of the lawn around the residence of the Hon. C. E. Pooley, Q. C., on Esquimalt road, on Saturday, and shot a pheasant. They were ordered away, but impudently refused to go. The provincial police are looking into the matter.

—Ald. Ledingham is making an effort to increase the attractiveness of the public library by securing contributions of publications and periodicals of various kinds. There was a time when public business men made annual contributions in that same line, but a particularly astute administration of the city government turned the offerings into general revenue and they were stopped. The library needs attention, as it has been sadly neglected.

THE FATHERLAND.

Bismarckian Papers Still Severely Criticizing the Governments Actions.

Berlin, Oct. 14.—Count Botho Eulenburg, the Prussian premier, returned on Thursday from his conference with the emperor in Hubertusstock. Yesterday he presided over the first plenary Prussian council held since the holidays. Finance Minister Miquel and Dr. Bosse returned from the country to be present. The premier submitted to the ministers a draft of the bill to amend the Prussian laws relative to associations. It is understood that the bill does not propose the rigorous measures which have been feared. While it may not suit the Conservatives in the landtag, it is the utmost that the premier could obtain from the emperor. It is not the premier's fault that he got so little. His proposals were to extend exceptional laws over the whole province of the press, to suppress boycott, to broaden the law of conspiracy and to regulate semi-private assemblies and unions held at public resorts. He urged that such special legislation could be passed through the landtag easily and could be enforced without difficulty in Prussia. Emperor William seems to have decided that the measure to be laid before the landtag must correspond with those to be submitted to the reichstag. The latter will be limited to amending article 13 of the penal code, which treats of incitements of class against class, and to regulate the right to boycott. The landtag measure will be submitted somewhat in advance of the imperial bill.

Emperor William unveiled in Kissain, near Pottsdam to-day, a monument to Frederick, the first elector of Brandenburg. The procession formed at the station, and, led by the emperor on horseback and a small body of the guards, marched to the square. The emperor was surrounded by his military household as he took his place near the monument. The ceremony was performed amid the pealing of bells and the braying of military trumpets. Afterwards District Councillor Freiherr von Loebell handed the emperor a goblet of Rhine wine. Before drinking, the emperor said:

"This cup I empty to the welfare of Brandenburg. I hope as long as God shall bestow on me life and power, as long as the house of Hohenzollern shall stand fast, there never will be any lack of the Brandenburger's traditional faithfulness in time of need, and when the margrave shall call."

The Bismarck press is nagging at the government with its accustomed persistence. Maxmilian Harden's Zukenft voices the Conservative and Bismarckian discontent, over the reported mildness of the repressive measures against the revolutionists. In its last number Count von Hoensbroech devotes a long article to the argument that the social democracy and the German empire are irreconcilable. The social democratic leaders, he recalls, have often avowed openly their desire to overthrow the existing social system whose apex is the empire. If they should triump the empire would vanish.

"It is a battle of life and death," he says, "in which mild treatment of the empire's enemies is the height of folly. The best means of securing the victory for the existing system is, to disqualify the several democrats to exercise any political rights. It would be simply justice to wipe them out in this manner because they do not possess the qualifications prescribed under the spirit of the constitution. Persons leagued to destroy the empire and its institutions should not be recognized as imperial subjects. They ought not to vote or be voted for. They should be denied the exercise of any political rights whatever."

The explicit avowal of the old Tory principles has excited much satirical comment among the Radical and Social Democratic editors.

The Humburg police arrested Shoemaker Johns of Altoona yesterday on the suspicion that he was an anarchist. Papers found in his house have compromised many other persons and several more arrests were made last night and to-day. The police decline to talk of the case.

The Social Democrats in the Berlin city council have moved that eight hours be the working day for all men employed by the city.

THE EASTERN WAR.

The Usual Crop of Comments on the Situation.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 14.—The military officials of the Amoor province of Russian Manchuria, which province adjoins eastern Chinese Manchuria, being separated therefrom by the Amoor river, have, it is said, received orders to hold all the troops in the province in readiness, in view of the complications in China rendering Russian intervention possible.

Private dispatches have been received here stating that several tribes in Afghanistan and Turkestan have appealed to Russia to make them Russian subjects.

New York, Oct. 14.—A special dispatch from Shanghai says: It now transpires that the viceroys of Hukwank and Yunnan have been ordered to Pekin in consequence, not of the operations of Japanese, but of French movements in the south. The imperial palace in Pekin is divided by two factions, one for peace and the other for war. The war party consists of the emperor, the imperial tutor, Ung Tung He, and Oolopu, director of the board of war. On the peace side are the empress dowager, Prince Kung and Li Hung Chang.

Berlin, Oct. 14.—The Hamburgische Correspondence publishes a semi-official communication pointing out that Germany on no account will take part in any intervention in favor of either of the belligerent interests in the east. The Cologne Gazette confirms the statement that Russia and France are working hand in hand in this matter, and repeats the assertion that they are also averse to interference in the war. It is added that as Austria is in a similar manner acting with Germany, and as it is claimed that the United States from the first has not concealed her sympathy with Japan, Italy is the only power that is likely to comply with the proposal of the Earl of Kimberly for an international intervention. The National Zeitung and other German newspapers point out that German interests in the war are not identical with those of England and Russia. The Cologne Gazette to-day publishes the following dispatch from Berlin: "It is confirmed from every source that Germany has declined to take part in a joint European intervention between China and Japan at the present juncture, and this subject, accordingly, is removed from the diplomatic programme of the powers."

The correspondent of the Associated Press has sounded a distinguished official upon the subject, and also made inquiries in other influential quarters, with the result that he has found it to be the general opinion that Japan, in the event of being victorious, will not make exorbitant demands upon China, but will restrict herself to insisting upon the independence of Corea, while asking for protectorate rights for herself, as well as a big war indemnify. It is probable that Japan may demand the cession of the island of Formosa.

Significant as indicating the intentions of Russia is the statement of the Berliner Tageblatt correspondent at St. Petersburg that the Russian troops in the towns, villages and passes along the Chinese frontier have been greatly reinforced, and that large quantities of provisions and war materials are constantly arriving at these places. Large detachments of Cossack artillery went first, and later strong detachments of infantry, taking with them the component parts of very spacious barracks, with portable heating and baking stoves. In a word everything, apparently, is being prepared for a forward movement, if such a step is decided to be necessary.

London, Oct. 14.—The British government, the Associated Press learns, will shortly publish a statement in regard to its attitude toward the war between China and Japan. Sir Hallidays Macartney, counselor for the Chinese legation in this city, declares the report that the Chinese were suing for peace was untrue.

RATHER HARSH TREATMENT.

Bark Eaton Hall Not Allowed to Enter at Tacoma.

Tacoma, Oct. 14.—The captain of the British ship Eaton Hall, which arrived here on Tuesday afternoon, is in trouble. She has not entered yet, and the customs officers will not allow her to enter. She has 450 tons of cement and a general cargo, and cannot discharge any of it until she enters. Captain George Lawlison says that he is here at an expense of $150 a day.

"The customs officers will not allow me to enter," said he, "because I did not stop at Port Townsend and have a quarantine officer come on board and inspect the ship. Collector Saunders was here yesterday, and told me that he could do nothing for me. Last night he wired me that he had referred the matter to Washington, D. C. I was at Victoria and Vancouver for some time and have a clean bill of health from both ports."

The customs officers say that they are only enforcing the law and regulations for which the treasury department at Washington, D. C., and not they, are responsible.

BURRARD INLET RAILWAY.

The Company's Application for an Extension of Time.

Tacoma, Oct. 14.—Percy Dickinson has returned from Vancouver, B. C., where on Tuesday last he and C. D. Rand appeared before a committee of the Vancouver city council appointed to investigate the cause of the delay in the construction of the subsidized Burrard Inlet & Fraser River Valley railroad, which is to connect the Northern Pacific with Vancouver. Mr. Dickinson presented to the committee affidavits substantiating the road's claims for an extension of time by reason of unavoidable obstruction to the progress of the work. The [illegible] plications of the receiverships of the Northern Pacific and the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern. Mr. Brady, a millionaire, of Albany, N. Y., was originally inclined to put up the money for the undertaking, but the danger of the financial crisis prevented him. The company, under the terms of its subsidy, must complete the road to Vancouver by December 31, 1895. A small force of men has been kept at work to hold the subsidy and the right of way.

THE ARAWA ARRIVES.

The State of Affairs in Hawaii—Advices from Australia.

The Australian liner Arawa, Captain Stewart, arrived here on Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, after a rather long voyage from Australia, Fiji and Hawaii. She took her time on the passage and was a couple of days behind time. She lost some time at Cape Flattery passing the straits in the fog and running up the west coast 20 or 25 miles. The voyage was uneventful, and was attended as a rule by fair wether. The Arawa left Sydney on September 19, a day late, reached Fiji on September 25 and Honolulu October 5. In latitude 35 degrees north the bark Iron Queen, bound from Port Hunter, for San Francisco, was sighted, and asked to be reported.

The ship brought a fair cargo of general freight, about 80 tons of which was for Victoria. In the freight was a specimen pile made of Australian turpentine wood, which is being taken to Vancouver as an experiment. It will it is said withstand the attacks of the teredo. The pile was sent by the forestry department of New South Wales.

On the passenger list appears the following names: T. McGill, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. More, Mr. Baird, Mr. Blaisdail, Mr. Pohlman, Dr. Howard, Captain Walters and family, F. B. Williams, James Wishart and E. E. Gilkerson. The last three named are Victorians who went down on the Warrimoo a month ago. They enjoyed their trip greatly and their stay in the paradise of the Pacific proved interesting.

The Arawa left for Vancouver at 11 o'clock on Saturday night. It had been intended to place her in the dock at Sydney when she was there, but arrangements could not be made. Her bottom is covered with barnacles and she will be docked on arrival there this time.

The Associated Press correspondent at Honolulu, writing on October 5, says:

Active work concerning the fast approaching elections of senators and representatives began last evening, when delegates to the convention which will be held in a short time were elected by the various district clubs. There was considerable enthusiasm shown. Resolutions were passed that no one who was not openly in favor of annexation could be elected, and the result is that one and all of the delegates are pledged, and those who are in favor of continuing the republic or of restoration have nothing to say in the matter. The elections will take place on the 29th of this month. The registration of voters for the coming elections has been very satisfactory to the present government. Nearly two thousand are already on the rolls, this number being only eight hundred less than the total number that registered for the last election under royalty.

The report that Judge Widman, one of the recent royalist commission to Washington, has gone to Germany and England for the purpose of enlisting the sympathies of those nations in the cause of the queen is scoffed at by the royalists here, and is probably only another of the many absurd rumors which have been rife ever since the revolution. Those who know the object of his trip abroad refuse to talk about the matter.

Australian advices contain nothing of a special nature. The trouble between the pastoralists and sheep shearers in Queensland was still unsettled. The matter was taken into the legislature by [illegible] ervation measure, and occasioned great confusion. Seven labor members were suspended and many bitter speeches were made from both sides.

On August 31 H. M S. Ringarooma, a third class cruiser of the Australian auxiliary squadron, struck on a reef off the southern end of Mallicolla island, in the Maskelymes islands. The fore part of the vessel up to the first funnel, about half the entire length, went on the reef. H. M. S. Dart and other vessels went to her assistance, and finally the French man-of-war Duchaffault offered her assistance. The Duchaffault succeeded, with the help of another steamer, and after great difficulty in bringing the Ringarooma off two weeks later. The Sydney papers speak very highly of the courtesy of the French man-of-war, as had rough weather come on before the rescue the Ringarooma would have been a total loss.

Sir Henry Parkes has given notice that he will move on September 13 in the New South Wales legislature: "That in view of the rapid growth of Australia in the elements of national life, and the number of questions arising out of that growth which can only be dealt with adequately by a national legislature, it is in the highest sense desirable that parliament, without loss of time, should resume the consideration of the federation of these colonies under one national government."

BRITISH COLUMBIA COAL.

Its Use by the American Warships on the Pacific.

A Port Townsend dispatch to the Post-Intelligencer says: "The government has an agent, W. B. Dunning, coal inspector for the United States navy, in British Columbia, securing samples of foreign coal for naval tests. He chartered the British steamer Joan, and is visiting all the coal mines. The naval vessels in Behring Sea this summer used British Columbia coal, and so would the revenue cutters had not Washington's congressional representative made a vigorous protest to the treasury department and got an order passed authorizing cutters to use Whatcom coal. As a pretence to patronize United States coal mines, the naval vessels when they departed for the north filled their bunkers with Whatcom coal, but after their arrival in the sea they used Comox, B. C., coal, of which five shiploads were sent to Unalaska.

Sangerville, Maine.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen:—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and when I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could not bear the slightest touch. When I had taken one bottle of this medicine, the soreness had gone, and before I had finished the second the bunches had entirely disappeared." BLANCHE ATWOOD, Sangerville, Maine.

BURGLARS ON SALARY.

Each Member of the Gang Lives in a Handsome Villa Near Paris.

Romancers have often enlarged upon the theme of a burglar in a dress suit. It appears from disclosures which have been made to-day that he is not a creature of the imagination. He actually exists. The commissary of police is investigating an affair which has already resulted in eleven arrests, and others may be made. Moreover, the prisoners, who are alleged to have been the members of a band of housebreakers, do not belong to the ordinary vulgar type of thief. Real gentlemen in education and tastes, every one of them had his villa or his richly furnished chambers, with carriages and horses. It appears that a few years ago Edmond Charton, a man of 30 years of age, perceived upon entering his villa at Grand Montrouge, a suburb beyond the Luxembourg, that the woman Manis, with whom he lived, had decamped with all the furniture. He hunted her down, and found her eventually with her sister, who occupied apartments in the Rue Marcadet. In his anger he fired a revolver at her without effect. The woman's cries brought the sister and a man to disarm the would-be murderer, the police intervened and all four were taken to the police station. Charton was placed under arrest, and in his rage cried, "But we are the whole lot as burglars. We are the gang who stole the bronzes, pictures, and jewelry from M. Barre, the sociétaire of the Comedie Francaise at Grand Montrouge. You will find them at Felix Bertin's house at Saint-Ouen." In consequence of these statements the four were laid up. Search was made at Bertin's house without discovering the goods, the mother of this individual asserted that they had been removed to other address. Further [illegible] house occupied by one Victor, several valuables were found concealed beneath the hen roost. Bertin and Victor, in their turn, were arrested.

Charton then denounced a certain Charles Corbeau who had also lived at Grand Montrouge. According to the particulars which are forthcoming of his history, this gentleman's antecedents are known by the fellow-criminals as the "Codfish." He is of an honest family, and his father, it is stated, is a chevalier of the Legion of Honor. As a student of the Lycee Lakanal he made good progress, became a licentiate of letters. His term of military service began in a regiment of infantry, which was in garrison at Nimes. One day Corbeau, in debt with a sergeant, slapped his face, and he was condemned by court martial to death. However, as there were extenuating circumstances, the sentence was pardoned, and he went to Tonkin as a soldier and conducted himself with credit. Unhappily, one day he had reason to be jealous of a superior officer in an affair of gallantry, and fired a revolver at him. For that crime he was sentenced to death. Still the penalty was not enforced, and having served a short time at public works in Algeria by way of punishment, Corbeau returned to France and was discharged from the army. In 1889 he possessed himself of the papers of a Prussian and he borrowed the name of the real owner, so that when arrested, he, concealing his identity, served two months in prison. At the end of period he was treated as a foreigner and conducted to the German frontier and remitted to the care of the police. He then discovered that the Prussian name and status he had assumed was a military defaulter. Corvas thereupon incorporated into the army, but he soon deserted and returned to Paris. Last May he is alleged to have organized the band of robbers who within less than three months has plundered property amounting to the value of 200,000. If the accounts kept by him be accepted he paid to each of the band every month, man for man, woman, $[illegible]

Corbeau's arrest was effected in a singular manner. Two detectives were selected who in 1889 had distinguished themselves by their skill as burglars for a fortnight in that they might get into the confidence of the assassins of the Rue Bonaparte. These officers encountered Corbeau who was driving a tilbury on the Boulevard Bourbon, near to one of his abodes the day before yesterday. At the approach of the police he attempted to escape, fearing that he would be arrested, but would have succeeded in getting had not the police in uniform come to the assistance of the plain clothes. A number of burglaries have been traced to the band, some stolen pictures, etc., searches which the police have made at the houses occupied by the thieves.

HERE'S A YACHT.

Eccentricities of an American Millionaire in England.

A strange story comes from Brightlingsea, a village on the Essex coast of England, concerning the strange conduct of Mr. Bayard Brown, a New Yorker, and son of one of America's distinguished families. In the little village of Brightlingsea, it is said, Mr. Brown dropped the anchor of his superb yacht Valfreyia five years ago, and since that time it has not been moved, the engines have not been put on, and on board the floating palace a millionaire has been disporting himself in a manner peculiarly his own. The yacht he kept a full crew, but their conduct became such that the old men could not stay with him, in spite of wages he offered them. He used to spend over one thousand dollars a month keeping the ship's routine up, though she were not anchored, but moored as big as clams fastening herself to her bottom in such a way that she could not swing lower in water.

"The Brightlingsea millionaire" is the title which the people of Brightlingsea have given Mr. Brown. They regard him as a veritable Monte Cristo, and it is little wonder that they do if the stories told of his generosity in the village, in the shape of public bequests and of his private beneficence be true. He scarcely ever goes ashore, it is said, and he receives few people aboard, for he is reputed to be a woman hater and to be possessed of the idea that his American relatives will try to entrap him and put him in an insane asylum. This idea has caused him to hate America and he has ceased to fly the flag on his yacht. He is also said to imagine that somebody has charged his yacht with electricity.

His eccentricities are said to manifest themselves most pronouncedly, however, in his disciplinary methods. If any member of his crew give him an offence, real or imaginary, he would not summon the man to him, but would wait until he was asleep and then douche him with cold water from a big syringe or belabor him with a club. He would invite a man to have a glass of ale with him and then knock him down while drinking it.

Mr. Brown is a cousin of W. Bayard Cutting of this city, and Mr. Brown's name, with that of Robert Fulton Cutting, is on the door of W. Bayard Cutting's office in the building at No. 32 Nassau street. W. Bayard Cutting, when shown the reports concerning his cousin to-day, said that he would not be surprised if the story was in the main correct.

"I know that Mr. Brown is very eccentric at times," he said, "but I hardly think he is demented. Perhaps his actions on his yacht are merely the result of his love for practical joking. He is 42 years old and unmarried. I hardly think that he is a woman hater. He did not use to be when he was over here, and I do not think he has ever been crossed in a love affair.

"His father, Mr. Spears Brown, died about eight years ago. He then went to Europe. He is a grandson of Robert Bayard, as I am. I have nothing to say about his wealth, except that he will never spend more than his income. He never was very extravagant, though. When he got to Europe eight years ago he chartered a yacht, in which he made a trip to the far east. He afterwards purchased a yacht called the Lady Torfida, which he sold to a member of the royal family of Russia. He then came back to New York about five years ago to settle some important business, but he did not stay here long. He has not been back since.

"We get letters from him about once a month, and they are written with great care and much attention to business details. I do not think that any man whose mind is affected could write such letters. Why he should choose to live in a yacht in a foreign country I cannot say, but I presume it suits him to pass his time away in that manner just as it suits me to go into business. He has the right to do as he likes, the same as other men.

"He has no relatives in this country nearer than myself and my brother. I cannot believe that he really fears that we will make an effort to place him in an insane asylum, for such a thought has never entered our heads and probably never will. He is a member of the Union club, the Riding club, the Knickerbocker club and the Southside club. I am sorry for the publicity his conduct on the other side has gained, but I must say that the story bears much of the imprint of truth."

RURAL DEPOPULATION.

It is Going on in France as Everywhere Else.

The trite saying that "Nature abhors a vacuum," was rarely illustrated better than it is at the present moment in many of the rural districts of France. The exodus of the towns has increased in so marked a degree of late years that parts of the country are becoming almost depopulated. The net result of all this is, says a correspondent, that agriculturists experience a growing difficulty in finding hands to do their work, and that at high wages, while competition between the ouvriers in the industrial centres is now so keen that they are only too glad to meet with employment at a reduced rate. In the interesting speech which he has just delivered at Montauquin, in the Department of Lot-et-Garonne, M. Leygues minister of public instruction has pointed to the evil and has furnished some instructive statistics. He says that while the Lot, the Dordogne, the Gers, and the Yonne have lost from ten to twenty thousand inhabitants, the Nord, the Rhone, and the Pas de Calais have, in the same period, gained from twenty to sixty thousand. "This (he exclaims) is a veritable national peril." The balance is distributed, and both agriculture and industry suffer alike. [illegible] this state of things that so much of the discontent now prevailing is to be attributed. Only a few days ago M. Jules Simon wrote on this very subject of rural depopulation, expressing the opinion that military service and the education given in the primary schools were responsible for it. Young men left their village home to join their regiments, and preferred town life when they left them. Then, too, the sort of training given at the primary schools gave a pupil a distaste for field labor. There is undoubtedly an exaggerated idea as to what can be achieved in the towns, as many a poor toiler eventually learns to his cost. It is generally admitted that the balance should be restored, but this is more easily said than done. At least, it is pointed out that the education of the peasant needs reform and modification, and that one of its aims should be to fit them better for a country life. As M. Leygues remarked: "The peasant must be reattached to his furrow." That agriculture is suffering from this anomalous state of things is generally acknowledged, and its correction would prove more efficacious than any amount of protection. "Agriculture needs hands" is the cry that has been raised for some time past, but the problem is one that it will be very difficult to solve.

Don't commit suicide on account of your "incurable" blood disease. The sensible thing for you to do is to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. If that fails, why, then—keep on trying, and it will not fail. The trouble is, people get discouraged too soon. "Try try, try again."

MELBA'S ROYAL LOVER.

The Young Duke of Orleans Fascinated by the Famous Songstress.

The present Duke de Paris has been known as the Duke of Orleans. He is about 25 years of age, and is not a heavyweight intellectually. All the nations of Europe have rejected his offers to enter the military service. Early in 1890 the young man got it into his head that since he could not get into the army of any nation ruled by a royal or imperial personage, he would try his luck in France, despite the expulsion laws. On the 5th he managed to get across the frontier unnoticed, and the next day he presented himself at a recruiting station, and was enlisted as a private soldier. His service in the army of the republic however was much shorter than had been his service in the English army, for he was straightaway recognized and his arrest speedily followed.

When it became known to the French people that a prince of the house of Orleans had not only broken into the republic, but had actually enlisted for a soldier, there was a great commotion.

The officials were in a state of mind that may best be described in the Yankee vernacular as a regular bobbery. They knew not what to do with the boy. Although there were men a-plenty who saw in the escapade evidence of a deep-laid plot to overthrow the government, there was every reason to believe that the government itself was not greatly alarmed. There were stories that the Count of Paris had written a letter abdicating the throne which had never been his in favor of his son in case he should succeed in his mission, and it was urged by some that the ducal neck should be made to feel the temper of the guillotine. Others suggested that the youngster be sent out of the country with all speed, but the course taken by the government was not along either of these lines. The duke was sentenced to two years imprisonment at Clairvaux, where the best room in the prison was given to him, and where his female relatives, including his mother and his cousin, fiancee, Princess Marguerite, daughter of the Duke of Chartres were permitted to visit him as often as they pleased. The Duke of Aumale, his uncle, who is exempt from the expulsion decree because he gave his magnificent estate of Chantilly to the Institute of France, was also a frequent visitor.

The duke's stay at Clairvaux seems to have been something of a prolonged holiday at the expense of the French people, for he was given everything to eat and drink and smoke that his somewhat pampered appetites craved, and he daily held levees, which were attended by admiring royalists.

After the duke's imprisonment had lasted six months President Carnot pardoned him, and the authorities conducted him secretly to the frontier and turned him loose with an injunction never to do so any more.

For a little after that the world was allowed to forget all about the Duke of Orleans. It was not slow to avail itself of the privilege, for he is of himself an uninteresting fellow at the best. It was not long, however, before he was a bigger figure than ever in the newspapers and in the minds of the world's gossips. He reached notoriety this time by way of his acquaintance with that beautiful woman and silver-voiced cantatrice, Mrs. Armstrong (nee Mitchell), better known as La Melba, the prima donna.

Whatever might have been the degree of intimacy existing between the duke and the song bird—and denied under oath that there was any criminality—a big scandal arose which was made public property when Capt. Armstrong sued for divorce, naming the heir of the Orleans pretensions as the co-respondent. He also sued for $100,000 damages, alleged to have been sustained by the loss of his wife's affections, and the Princess Marguerite promptly declared her engagement with the duke off. It was considered by certain ladylike European journalists that the plight of the gentle princess was the saddest thing in the whole business, "for," one of them wrote, "she has been compromised by the young rascal, who had photographs of himself and the principal lady in question."

In her answer Mme. Melba put in a complete denial, besides filing a terrific crossbill for divorce from Armstong, who, she declared, had been cruel to her, even going so far, more than once, as to strike her with his fist. The matter was finally allowed to drop, and it has been stated and denied that the singer paid her husband large sums of money. Whether she did or not, the notoriety given her by the scandal increased her popularity so much that her manager was willing to pay 4,000 francs a night for her services, instead of 6,000 francs a month, as was originally agreed upon.—Foreign letter.

TUPPER AND THE CANNERS.

The minister of fisheries has written another letter on the Fraser river question, this one being addressed to Col. Prior, M. P., and by him handed to the Colonist for publication. We are at a loss to know why the minister should go to so much trouble, for it is quite obvious that his effusions will result in no good to himself, to his department or to the government. If he cannot see his way clear to writing in a different vein he would do better to keep quiet. The Fraser river canners are like all men of independent spirit in that they are naturally averse to being converted with a bludgeon, yet this is the method which seems to find favor with Sir Charles Hibbert. Abusing and sneering at the canners is a very poor policy for him to follow, and is undignified withal. The minister is comparatively young, but he has been in office for a period long enough to have taught any man ordinarily endowed with intelligence that a minister always suffers from a display of bumptious arrogance. If Sir Charles has sources of information out of reach of the canners from which he learns that they are all wrong in their contentions and demands, then there coud be no objection to his politely instructing them, but it is a different thing when he starts out to insult them and sets their intelligence aside as an utterly worthless guide to the situation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A few weeks ago the Quebec government passed an order in council fixing a crown due of 40 cents per log on spruce logs for paper pulp cut on the crown lands of the province, but allowing a rebate of 15 cents per cord when the logs were reduced to pulp in mills within the province. It seems to have been feared in Ottawa that this discrimination against mills in the States, though not due to the action of the Dominion government, would lead to the duty being replaced on Canadian lumber entering the States by way of retaliation. The Dominion government therefore suggested that the discrimination should be dropped, and the Quebec government has accepted the advice, making a uniform rate of 40 cents per cord without rebate.

Mr. Chamberlain proposes to introduce a bill at the next session of the British parliament to provide for the furnishing of state aid to artisans for the purchase of homes of their own, for the granting of old age pensions, for the limitation of the hours of labor in shops and families, for the restriction of pauper alien immigration and a new employers' liability act, embodying a contracting-out clause. Mr. Chamberlain seems to take the British artisan for a bird that can be caught with chaff.

The Revelstoke Mail concludes that "West Kootenay should vote for the Liberals and free trade, or partial free trade, or anything that will help us to get out of the clutches of the C. P. R." There are weightier reasons than this for West Kootenay supporting the Liberal party, but the Mail's reason is a good one in itself.

A STUPID COMPARISON.

The character of a defence is an unerring index to the character of what is defended. No man finds himself under the necessity of defending truth by apology or of offering excuses for that which produces only good results. It is an old device of wrongdoers to seek to divert attention from their wrongdoing by attempting to pick holes in the coats of those who would expose it. Four years ago the Victoria protectionist asserted that though we did pay more for our goods on account of protection we got it all back again, and more too, in the increased prosperity which protection created. The logic of facts having completely established the falsity of this claim in the experience of the business men and working men of Victoria, our champions of protection are driven to the expedient of directing popular attention from the investigation of the evils resulting from protection to the consideration of representations of British protectionists in their efforts to disparage the effects of free trade. Finding it impossible to defend protection on its merits, they apologize for it by instituting a comparison between the condition of the farmers in England and the farmers in Canada. Recognizing that the failure of protection to benefit the Canadian farmer is established by facts which they cannot set aside, they seek to place free trade in the same category by asserting its failure to make prosperity for his British contemporary. But if free trade does fail to make prosperity for the British farmer, by the admission of protectionists themselves it does not make him pay a high price for the failure. The British farmer in prosperous times is not compelled to pay the price of high tariffs for making them, and if hard times do come upon him they are not made harder for him by the burden of protective taxes in addition. Compared with the British the Canadian farmer is at the disadvantage—if protectionist reasoning be sound—that when he enjoys good times he must pay smartly for them in high duties or in profits to manufacturers; and when times are bad with him protection still demands its pound of flesh. After two years of the worst kind of times in Victoria and the surrounding country protection adds as much to the cost of goods consumed by the inhabitants as it did when times were at their best.

But the comparison made by protectionists between Canadian and British farmers is not a fair one. The vast majority of Canadian farmers own the land they till and should reap the revenue not only of tillers of the soil but of landlords as well. In Britain one set of men till the soil which another set of men own, and revenue from cultivation which in Canada goes into the pockets of working farmers, are in Britain divided between farmers who work and landlords who do nothing to increase their returns, and invariably the largest share falls to the latter. In Canada the whole revenues from cultivation and ownership are burdened with the support of only one class, and that an active one in production; in Britain these revenues are burdened with the support of two classes, by far the most expensive one of which is non-productive.

The expenditures of government which go to increase taxation upon the farmer are more numerous and of greater volume in Britain than in Canada. The expenditures of government to which the Canadian farmer is compelled to contribute in taxation are limited to a purely civil or commercial character. In addition to these the British farmer is taxed for the expenditures of a royal court and the pensioning of a host of royal relatives, the maintenance of large armies and the construction of vast fortifications in every part of the globe and the keeping in efficiency of a naval establishment of such a magnitude as the world in its past has not ever even dreamed of. Yet in spite of all these adverse conditions that free trade did promote the prosperity of the British farmer history abundantly proves, but in doing so in a country with a crowded and increasing population it induced a keen competition for a share in the farmers' prosperity which enabled the idling landlord to put up the rent of the working farmer to the utmost limit which the most prosperous years made possible. Under any trade policy or any system of taxation it is not possible that all years should be alike prosperous, and a high rent to the British farmer in the best years brought disaster to him in less prosperous ones, and as a natural consequence a demand for a reduction of rent. It is not in the nature of things that men enjoying fat revenues should relinquish them without any effort to save them, and in his dilemma the British landlord finds in the protective idea the readiest instrument for the perpetuation of high rents. If the handful of landlords who own the soil of Britain could induce a majority of the British people to shut out foreign grain by protective tariffs to make their own bread dearer, the increased profits to be made in growing grain on British farms must in the end find their way into their own pockets, and the hearts of the kind of (landlord) "farmers" for which the protectionist press of Canada has so much sympathy would be made glad. But the manufacturing and trading people of England are not so ignorant of economic problems as to make them an easy prey to the protectionist sophistry. They are beginning to discover the reason why the burden of direct taxation has fallen so heavily on themselves is that the landlords of Great Britain have not so far been contributing anything like their fair share. And thus it is that the agitation for the taxation of ground rents is assuming much more important proportions in Britain than that kind of bastard protection known to British politics as "fair trade." The next great fight between British free traders and their opponents will not be over the question of returning to a policy of protection, but over the question of placing the burdens of direct taxation where they properly belong. Any comparison between British farmers, taxed enormously for military expenditures in almost every country on earth and to meet the charges of a huge national debt contracted in useless wars of more than a century ago, and Canadian farmers, taxed only for expenditures within their own territory and almost exclusively for commercial improvements made in their own time and for their own advantage, could only be made by men who are ignorant of the value of argument or are in the desperate straits of having no sound argument to offer. Why do not protectionist editors compare the condition of the British farmer under free trade with that of contemporaries in protectionist countries of a like age and subject to similar conditions? Why do not they compare the British with the French, or Italian, or German, or Austrian, or Russian farmer? Perhaps it is that the wretchedness of the French peasantry, the hopeless poverty which drives so many Italian cultivators to brigandage, the Austrian farmers' diet of black bread, or the starving, famine cursed condition of the tillers of Russian fields, warns them of the exposures which are in store for those who look too closely into the effects of protection where it has the fullest sway and been logest in operation. But this policy of apology and hiding the truth will not save protection. As truth must eventually triumph over error and freedom outlive tyranny, so must free trade triumph over restriction. "Times change, men pass, but that which is built on truth endures." INTRA MUROS.

HOW A PRIZE WAS WON.

An Examiner's Bad Writing Was in Tennyson's Favor.

Mr. James Payne tells an amusing story of the way in which Tennyson's "Timbuctoo" won its prize at the university. The examiners for the year, he says, were three—the vice-chancellor, who had a great reputation, but a violent temper, and who did not write very well; a classical professor, who knew no poetry that was not in a dead language, and a mathematical professor. It was agreed that each should signify by the letters "g" and "b" (for "good" and "bad") what he thought of the poems, and the vice president had the manuscripts first. When the mathematical professor got them he found "Timbuctoo" scored all over with "g's," and though he could not understand why, nor indeed the poem itself, did not think it worth while, as he afterwards said (though the fact was he was afraid) to ask the Vice his reasons; so he wrote "g" on the poem also. The classical professor thought it rather funny that his predecessors should admire so unintelligible a production; but, as he said, "he did not care one iota about the matter," and so wrote "g" on it also; and as no other poem had three "g's," the prize was unanimously awarded to the author of "Timbuctoo." After all was over the three examiners happened to meet one day, and the Vice, in his absolute fashion, fell to abusing the other two for admiring the poem. They replied very naturally, and with some indignation, that they should never have dreamt of admiring it if he himself had not scored it over with "g's."

"G's!" he said; "they were "q's," for queries, for I could not understand two consecutive lines in it."

Baltimore Hotels Refuse to Accommodate an Indian Priest.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 15.—Swami Vivekonawanda, a high priest from India, who is stopping here now, had some difficulty obtaining rooms in a hotel. The Rev. Hiram Vrooman, of this city, had made arrangements for his entertainment at a leading hotel, but when the priest arrived, he was told the room had been assigned to another. Last night he spent at Mr. Vrooman's house. Yesterday morning Mr. Vrooman started out to find quarters for his guest. He went to the first class hotels in the centre of the city. At the first one he explained to the clerk who Swami Vivekonawanda was, and asked if he could board him during his stay in the city. The clerk refused to allow the man to sleep in the house, giving as a reason that as the hotel had a good many patrons from the south, some of them might become offended by seeing a man in the hotel whom they might take for a negro. The same condition of affairs was met with at the other hotel. Mr. Vrooman, then went to the Belmont, the largest and most expensive hotel in the city and Swami Vivekonawanda was welcomed and the distinguished visitor is receiving a great deal of attention. Mr. Vrooman is very much stirred up over the affair. "To think," he said, "that a hotel keeper turning from his door a man who was the first translator of the works of Thomas A. Kempis into the Sanskrit tongue and spread it through the East Indian nation." The priest delivered a lecture before a large audience at the Lyceum theatre.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

Bill to Terminate the Strife Between Employers and Employees.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Simon C. Eastman, a prominent Chicago lawyer, has drafted a bill to be presented to Congress at its next session, which goes far towards terminating the ceaseless strife between railroad companies and their employees. The bill takes the form of a mendatory clause to the clause entitled "An Act to Regulate Commerce," which was approved February 4th, 1887. The chief provision is for the licensing of employers in the more important branches of the railway service, and provides for a monetary penalty for the company that give work to an employee without government license. Other provisions of the bill deal with the question of the due fulfilment of contracts between men and employers, settlement of certain classes of disputes and the penalties attached to the disregard of the provisions of the proposed law. Copies of the bill have been mailed to employers and employees and a few of the recipients have written to Mr. Eastman giving their views on the subject. Mr. Eastman says his object is simply that of a citizen, who has the welfare of the people in mind. He is not connected with any organization or railway company. He thinks the bill will better the social and pecuniary condition of employees.

—The annual exhibition of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society takes place on Friday and Saturday of this week. Elaborate preparations have been made for the fair, which promises to be even more interesting than previous ones. A programme of sport, including horse racing, has been arranged for each day.

—Victorians who exhibited their canines at the New Westminster dog show are very much pleased with the treatment they and their animals received at the hands of the management. The buildings in which the show was held was particularly well fitted for the purpose, the dogs being placed on raised benches, each having a stall to itself. The prizes offered were numerous and valuable, and it was shown by the prize list a number of them came to Victoria. Besides the successful exhibitors previously mentioned, Mr. G. A. Perrin's Irish setter bitch puppy "Rose," won second for bitches, first for bitch puppies and a cup for the best dog or bitch puppy. W. G. Perrin won first for the best dog or bitch Irish setter, with "Ireland Yet."

—The police were for a time this morning in a serious dilemma. On Saturday evening Constables Mouatt and Gilchrist found an old man named John Emory lying on the ground in a secluded part of the Indian reserve. He was hungry and weak from exposure and neglect. His mind was wandering. An examination of him showed that he was simply alive with vermin, and he was temporarily quarantined. This morning no one could be found who would undertake to cut his hair, which was longer than that of a college football player, and the police knew that before fumigating him the hair had to be cut. A Siwash, who had a pair of long distance clippers, agreed to do the job for 50 cents. The police jumped at the offer. Emory was then given a strong chemical bath under direction of the sanitary staff, and will be provided with a new outfit at the expense of the city.

—Last evening in First Presbyterian church Dr. Campbell preached a practical sermon from Numbers 23:10—"Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like him." At the conclusion he made a very touching reference to the death of Rev. Harry H. Webb, who died after a few days' illness, at San Francisco. The speaker said that as a Christian he was of a lovable character, one who lived near the Savior, and whose aim in life was the glory of God and the salvation of sinners. His Christianity was not of the [illegible] of the humble, unassuming and modest, manifesting by his life the beauty of holiness. Dr. Campbell referred with pathos to the many kind, earnest and loving words Mr. Webb had spoken to the congregation during the eight weeks of last winter he conducted evangelistic services in the First church, assisted by his brother-in-law and the pastor.

—The Canadian Gazette of 27th of September says: "The Bank of British Columbia are authorized by the government of the province of British Columbia to receive applications for an issue of £131,400 4 per cent. bonds of £100 each of the Nakusp & Slocan railway company, both principal and interest being guaranteed by the province. The price of issue is 107 1-2 per cent. The interest dates are the first of January and July, and the principal is to be repaid at par on the 1st of July, 1918. An agreement has been entered into for the lease of the undertaking for 25 years from completion to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, who are to pay as an annual rental an amount equal to 40 per cent. of the gross earnings, and sums received under this agreement, together with a subsidy from the Dominion of Canada, [illegible] are to be paid to the British Columbia government to indemnify them against their liability in respect of the guarantee. The list of applications will close on Friday for London, and on the following day for the country."

THE MINISTERIAL TROUBLE.

Embarrassing Hole in the Treasury That Must be Filled Up by a Loan.

Ottawa, Oct. 6.—Hon. George E. Foster, minister of finance, left here yesterday for England, and if I am correctly informed, Sir John Thompson will follow him on Saturday next. At any rate such is the report in official quarters and, indeed, such is the intention of the premier, if nothing happens between now and then to make him change his mind. The present government is nothing if not changeable. They start out to do something to-day, and to-morrow someone comes along and says that they should do something else, the result being that they do nothing at all.

Of course the errand of Mr. Foster is to negotiate a loan. The presence of the premier is not necessary to do this. Indeed, if Sir Charles Tupper were to carry out the duties for which he was appointed the finance minister would not require to go to London for such a purpose. Everybody who has studied Canadian politics will remember that the excuse for appointing a high commissioner in London was to save the necessity of the government sending over the finance minister when the raising of a loan was needed. But everybody now knows that instead of saving these trips to the Canadian taxpayer they have become more numerous than ever. That is a sample of how Tory promises are carried out.

It is said that Sir John's contemplated visit is for the purpose of being sworn in as a member of the privy council, to which he was appointed some time ago for his services in connection with the Behring Sea case. Another report is also current, and that is that he and Mr. Foster intend talking over the question of the general elections with Sir Charles Tupper, the high commissioner.

It is well known here that the government have made every preparation for the holding of the general elections, and it is also believed that if Lord Aberdeen will agree to it a dissolution will take place before the present voters' lists are revised. With a number of new constituencies for which there are no lists it is impossible to conceive that his excellency would permit what would be an outrage on the constitution for no other purpose than to give the government a better chance of obtaining a new lease of power. Admitting then, that the governor-general would not accede to this, if he were asked to do so, what is the next move that the government will take. Well, it is this: The lists will be revised by the 28th of February next. A general election will immediately follow. That is to say it will come on just as soon as the lists can be ready for it, after the revision is closed. It will take some little time to have them printed after that date, but the work being in the hands of the government they can expedite this. The lists in this way can be handed out to the government candidates before the opposition are able to get them. That will be a big advantage. It was done in the bye-elections which were fought out after the last general elections.

There will, if this programme which has been mapped out is followed up, be no sitting of parliament before the general elections come off. To have no session means that the opposition will have no chance of going on with some of the scandals which were started last session, nor any of the new ones which have arisen since that time. Mr. Haggart will not be called upon to tell parliament why he has not caught those thieves whom he spoke about as having robbed the public treasury in connection with the Curran bridge job. The freight rates commission will not have had time to do any work, if it is appointed, and as for the prohibition commission there will be no report either. But one of the great reasons for not having a session before an election is to save Mr. Foster having to announce a deficit for the past year and a still greater deficit for the current year. The tumble which the revenue of the country has taken is such that he and his colleagues are not able to combat. There is only one way of doing so, and that is rigid economy. But talk of a government which has existed by its liberal distribution of boodle turning economical. That is out of the question, and that is just why Mr. Foster has gone to England to borrow some money. As I started out by saying that the government is changeable, there is no [illegible] what they may ultimately pursue but such is the programme which is now talked of.

Sometime ago I said in this correspondence that the general elections would not come off, probably, until next September. Well, that was before the financial crisis came on. That was also before Mr. Laurier's successful tour in the west had taken place. That was also before the contemplated trip of the ministers through Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia had been abandoned.

There is just one thing that may yet transpire to upset the government's intention of a general election before a session and that is the opposition which will come from their following in the house.

I was talking the other day with a prominent Conservative member of parliament on this point. He admitted that the sooner the government would go to the country the better chance there would be for them retaining power. But he said that another session meant $60,000 in favor of the Conservative party. "There are," said he, "at the least 60 of a majority in the House. Well take the indemnity of $1000 a session, not to speak of mileage and other perquisites, and it just exactly means $60,000 to help to carry the next election. You may rely upon it that the Conservative members will fight against it. Sir John Thompson will have to show more backbone than he generally does if he is able to get his forces into line. Sir John Macdonald had this to contend with before the last general elections, but Sir John Macdonald and Sir John Thompson are two very different men."

The appointment of Mr. Meredith as chief justice of the court of common pleas is one of the surprises of the week. No one is yet able to give an explanation as to the cause of the appointent or how it came about. The only one thing that is plain about it and is easily understood is that Mr. Meredith was sick of Ontario politics and took the first opportunity of getting out of them. Sir John Thompson was also probably glad to get rid of Mr. Meredith. Indeed, there can be no doubt upon this point. Between the support of "Bill" Meredith, as he was popularly called, and Archbishop Cleary, the premier prefers the latter. Sir John also hopes that the ultra-Protestants will forgive him for taking away their leader when they come to consider that he gave him a good job and one which he wanted. As for Sir Oliver Mowat it means a great deal and makes his position all the more invulnerable. Those newspapers, like the Empire, that have been cackling about summoning the legislature to discover whether or not Sir Oliver had a majority must feel very silly now.

Referring to the appointment of Judge Casault to the position of chief justice of the superior court of Quebec, it may be pointed out that the premier has done that which violates a very old and faithfully kept compact. It was always a thoroughly understood thing between the English speaking and French speaking people of Quebec that the former would always have one of the positions of the two chief justices, that of the superior court or that of the court of Queen's bench. That compact has never been broken since confederation or for many years before. Pressure was made when Sir E. Johnson was promoted to be chief justice to give the post to Judge Casault, but Sir John Macdonald would not hear of it. Mr. Ouimet, however, succeeded in getting Sir John Thompson to violate the pledge, so as to help to make the Catholic vote more solid. The English speaking people are not apt to make a great noise over it, but they feel it all the same.

The government intend during the coming week to once more deal with the lieut.-governorship of Manitoba and the collectorship of Montreal. It is likely that A. W. Ross and R. S. White will be told after both matters have been discussed that they will have to wait until after the next general elections. To open either constituency means to lose it.

"When I was a Boy,"

Writes Postmaster J. C. WOODSON, Forest Hill, W. Va., "I had a bronchial trouble of such a persistent and stubborn character, that the doctor pronounced it incurable with ordinary medicines, and advised me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I did so, and one bottle cured me. For the last fifteen years, I have used this preparation with good effect whenever I take and I know of numbers of people who keep it in the house all the time, not considering it safe to be without it."

"I have been using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for 30 years, with the most satisfactory results, and can cheerfully recommend it as being especially adapted to all pulmonary complaints. I have, for many years, made pulmonary and other medicines a special study, and I have come to the conclusion that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral occupies a position pre-eminent over other medicines of the class."—Chas. NEWS OF THE INTERIOR.

Very Wealthy Copper Claims Discovered in the Similkameen District.

Kootenay Mail.

Joe O'Connor, who runs Laforme's cayuse train, arrived down on Thursday, after being held up for five days at the crossing of Downie creek. On arriving at the creek last Friday he discovered that the bridge was gone—shoved off by a slide which had carried almost the whole mountain side down. The structure had to all appearances been built on a solid rock foundation, but the rock must have rested on a bed of quicksand or some such shifting strata, and the heavy rains recently no doubt caused the trouble. However, Joe started in to devise a plan to get his train over, and first tried a raft, which proved a failure. He then gathered what assistance he could and commenced the erection of a temporary bridge. While thus engaged A. N. Beaton arrived up with his pack train and he was pressed into the service. Work was progressing favorably, when on Tuesday Tom Downs and a trail gang arrived on the scene. They had been sent along the trail to clear out slides and repair bridges, and arrived just in time to lend a hand to the volunteer force. The new bridge, which is located about six hundred feet above the old structure, has a span of 68 feet, and by Wednesday was far enough advanced to permit a resumption of traffic, when the volunteers took their various ways and left Mr. Downs and his men to complete the work.

The provincial government has at last made a move in the matter of the river bank protection. Mr. L. B. Hamlin, C. E., arrived here on Tuesday and spent two days inspecting the site of the proposed work. In conversation he said he believed piling and cribwork would afford the necessary protection for some distance immediately below the railway bridge, and he thought the bank near the school house, and in that neighborhood generally, could be saved from further erosion by turning the water back into its former channel, this side of the first island. He thought this could be done for the amount of the appropriation, but it would be his endeavor to make the work of a lasting character, rather than cover the whole river bank. However, he would have to report the result of his investigation to the government, for which purpose he left for Victoria on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Hamlin said he expected to return next week, when he will immediately proceed to get out the necessary timber for piling and stone for cribbing. It is to be hoped, now that the provincial government has taken the initiative in this matter, the Dominion government will show itself equally willing to make a start. No more time should be lost.

Mrs. Moxley and family left here on Thursday for Notch Hill, where Mr. Moxley has taken up land. They were compelled to leave Hall's Landing, where they had an excellent ranch, on account of their land being entirely under water during the late floods. Several other families who suffered by the inundation down river have located at Notch Hill.

Placer mining along the Columbia river has received an impetus that promises to develop into settled mining operations. The scene of the present excitement is at Troy, twenty miles north of Wenatchee. The hight water in June washed off many bars where Chinamen mined years ago. Now that the water has fallen these bars are exposed and the ground is found to be very rich. By a chemical process which they are operating there fully 90 per cent. of the fine gold can be saved. James Henson and his two partners took out $15 worth of gold in half a day—the first run that was made. New camps are being made every day along the river, and that section promises new developments right along.

In the matter of passenger rates eastward Revelstoke is now on an equal with Pacific coast terminals, the rates being the same as from Vancouver. It to know that it will not be necessary to go to Vancouver to purchase a ticket to eastern points, as it can be obtained at precisely the same price here.

Golden Era.

On Sunday morning the following buildings were destroyed by fire: Jack Byrne's barber shop, Yee Lee's laundry, Frank Field's restaurant, White & Shiel's butcher shop and Mrs. Lewis' laundry. White & Shiels lost everything they had in the store, valued at between $400 and $500. The others were more fortunate, having most of their goods removed. The buildings themselves did not amount to much and were no great loss, although at the present time, when houses are so scarce, they brought a good rent.

Kamloops Sentinel.

Mr. G. C. Tunstall, gold commissioner, who returned from Spallumcheen last week, reports that mining prospects in that part of the p rovince are good and are likely to get better every year, and he has no doubt but that the output of precious metal will be large. A gentleman from Princeton sends, under date of September 28th, by him for publication in the Inland Sentinel a letter about [illegible] time ago and being prospected this summer:

"Mr. A. R. Brown, of Kettle river, has completed his assessment work on the Sunset, a copper claim located about ten miles above Princeton. The amount of mineral in sight in this prospect at present is simply astonishing. It has been known for years that a heavy body of copper existed up the Similkameen, but all efforts to locate the main had failed, until Mr. Brown made the present discovery and located the present property. There is now located and will be worked in partnership three claims on this ledge, the Sunset, Vancouver and Helen H. Gardner. Mr. Brown and partners intend spending about $1800 in development work this season, being so well pleased with the improved appearance of the ore as they go down. The present shaft is now down over twenty feet and shows a most marked improvement in the character of the ore over that found on the surface. Specimens and concentrate assays from this property run up as high as 71 per cent. copper. It is at present, and will be for the next two hundred feet at least, a concentrate proposition. The croppings have been traced for a distance of two thousand feet along the direction of the deposit and to a width of about eight hundred feet, showing this to be one of the greatest deposits of mineral ever discovered.

Since Mr. E. H. Fletcher, post office inspector, was in Kamloops last it has been decided to open a post office on the North Thompson river at J. F. Smith's store, with Mr. Smith as post master. This point is about 38 miles from Kamloops and is at the junction of Louis creek road with the North Thompson road. It will certainly be a great convenience to quite a number of settlers. Whoever carries the mail will be required to leave letters and papers at those places on the way where requested to do so.

Mr. James A. Sinclair has resigned his position as governor of Kamloops jail, and Mr. O. S. Batchelor, formerly of Fish lake, has been appointed in his place. Mr. Sinclair has had charge of Kamloops jail for nine years, and during that time has made many warm friends in the city.

The party consisting of Messrs. J. F. Smith of Lewis Creek, George F. Dorr, M. W. Farrell and two Indians, which was sent up by Mr. L. V. Bennett to do assessment work on the mica mine at Tete Jeune Cache, returned to the city on Monday afternoon. They left Kamloops on August 8th with nine pack horses, besides their own saddle horses, and returned without losing an animal and with them all in good condition. Considerable mica was taken out and left at the mine, but only 250 pounds was brought down. Some of this was cut to 16x24 inches, a very large size, but most of it was 16x16, some of it four inches in thickness.

The stockmen from Campbell's to Vick's ranches will start the fall round-up on Tuesday next, October 1d.

On Saturday last samples from a new coal discovery were brought to the city by Messrs. Joseph and Eugene Gott, who have spent the summer up the North Thompson. They left in July and spent that month, August and September, in prospecting from Louis creek to Blue river. The discovery of a well defined seam of coal was about all of value they came upon. The vein was found in the valley of what was called Boulder creek, but they gave it the name of Gott creek, about 61 miles from Kamloops and two miles east from the North Thompson river. It appears in the valley and may be traced for five miles or more without difficulty. The vein runs in a northerly direction along St. Louis lake. The surface showing is about two feet in thickness, with wall rocks of petrified wood and dark sandstone, which can be split with an axe, making a total thickness of about three feet six inches. The Gotts continued their journey and about September 1st came back to prospect their find. They followed the vein at an angle of about 45 degrees, to a depth of fifteen feet, where it had a thickness of three feet. As they descended the pitch became deflected more from the perpendicular, and apparently the coal underlies the mountain. Samples from the surface have been brought down to the city, but they are rather resinous. The coal from a greater depth in all probability will be of good quality. Five claims have been staked along the vein and the usual notices of application for permission to prospect for coal published. Mr. L. V. Bennett has become interested with the Gott brothers in the find.

Some anxiety is being felt for the safety of a party of Seattle prospectors who left Kamloops last April and proceeded up the North Thompson. A canoe was found bottom up and the provisions cached by the party were seen by two parties who recently visited there. The party was composed of George McCabe and two partners, Nelson de Pew and A. Sturterant.

Vernon News.

A Chinaman named Lee Gow, one of a party of four who were engaged in placer mining a short distance above Gallagher & Stevenson's ranch on Mission creek, was drowned last week. The creek has recently been much swollen, and the unfortunate Chinaman fell of a log while endeavoring to cross and was swept under by the swift current. His body was recovered the next day, about half a mile below the scene of the accident.

Sir. Peter Walker's hunting party returned on Saturday from a very successful trip to the Harris creek country. D. W. Wright was in charge of the party and Eneas McDougall acted as guide. They succeeded in killing five caribou and the same number of grizzly bears. One of the latter was probably the large[illegible] years ago, its skin measuring over eight feet in length and it must have weighed over a thousand pounds.

It is with deep regret that we are compelled this week to chronicle the death of Mrs. E. P. Lambly, of Enderby, which occurred on the third instant. The deceased lady, who has for many years been a resident of this district, was esteemed for her many amiable qualities by all who knew her; and though her death, which occurred at the ripe age of 78 years, was not unexpected, it cast a gloom over the whole community. The funeral took place on Friday last and was largely attended by sorrowing friends.

We hear that a petition is being circulated in Spallumcheen municipality, against the proposed drainage scheme recently inaugurated by the council.

A hunting party, made up of Captain May, and Messrs. Leo Simmons and Ritchie, came in on Friday morning, much to the relief of their friends who had grown anxious over their prolonged absence. The party, who were after caribou near the Cherry Creek pinnacles, met very rough weather and were snowbound for several days; to add to their misfortune [illegible] strayed off and have not yet been recovered. As they had overstayed their proposed time by over two weeks, it was feared that they were lost and a search party was about starting out on the morning of their return.

Mr. Thomas Glendenning returned last week from a trip to the Nechaco country, which he visited with the intention of locating there if he found the climate suitable for farming. He returns with a very poor opinion of the Nechaco valley which he pronounces to be subject to severe summer frosts; and states that his party [illegible] in the valley nearly all the month of July and every night there was frost sufficient to make ice on the water buckets.

Midway Advance.

Mr. Sandgrass has about completed his contract for the cutting of timber for the townsite company at Okanagan Falls, and as soon as he gets through with it he will start cutting for the new hotel which he contemplates erecting at this point.

It is understood that ore will be crushed for outside parties by the Strathyre company's mill at Fairview, and Mr. T. Elliott contemplates running some out of the Smuggler mine through. By its appearance it should pay well, being a very free milling ore.

The first party of the season to go forward to the Ashnola country after big horn, consisted of James W. Lowther, Esq., M. P. for Westmoreland, Eng., accompanied by Mr. Ernest Farquhar. They started from Penticton last week and went in by way of the Mountain house pass.

Mr. W. T. Smith has purchased for American parties the Mountain Rose and Emma claims from J. Schofield and the Minnie Moore from John Keough and Or. Butts in the Summit camp. A considerable portion of the purchase money has been paid down. It is, we understand, the intention of the purchasers to sink on one of these properties, so as to make a thorough test of the extent of the ore body. Mr. Smith is expected back shortly from Spokane. The Emma and Minnie Moore are on the main lead and the Mountain Rose on a side vein.

Arrangements are being made, we are informed, to work the Cariboo mine, Camp McKinney, all winter. A ditch will be dug from Rice creek so that water can be brought to the mill in pipes without freezing up.

The salary of one of our worthy post masters has been raised recently to such an extent ($3 per month) that the surplus of his income, if not invested in an insurance policy, is liable to cause him a good deal of worry, trouble and anxiety of mind.

Mr. C. C. Sands was in Midway on Sunday exhibiting some magnificent free gold specimens from the St. Lawrence. He reported that the men working in the tunnel had struck a hitherto unknown ledge four feet between walls, last week, which carries high grade rock. Fourteen men are now at work on the claim and another shipment will be made shortly.

The last assessment work done on the Maple Leaf, Camp McKinney, consisted in deepening the shaft six feet, putting in new timbers, etc. The working of the Cariboo has drained the Maple Leaf to perfection. There are seventy tons of ore on the dump.

It is generally understood that the Chinamen engaged in placer mining on the river are now doing well. The amount of placer gold finding its way into the store and hotelkeepers' hands is a true indication of the same.

Messrs. J. Hunter, Chelson and Griffin, who had been on an extensive prospecting trip on the main Kettle river, returned to Loomiston last week, taking with them a number of samples of silver ore. They are reported to have made a strike.

Nothing Strange.

Intelligent people, who realize the important part the blood holds in keeping the body in a normal condition, find nothing strange in the number of diseases Hood's Sarsaparilla is able to cure. So many troubles result from impure blood, the best way to treat it is through the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla vitalizes the blood.

TO THE SCENE OF HIS CRIME

Prisoner's Regard for Truth—Part of Stolen Money Missing—Extradition.

Sergeant Forbes of the New South Wales police arrived here on Saturday evening on the Arawa, armed with the necessary papers for the extradition of Frederick Bollman, who absconded from Sydney over two months ago, stealing $6,000 from Hinckles & Co., a German hardware firm. The exact method that will be followed in formally transferring the prisoner to the representative of the Sydney police has not yet been determined upon, as the case is without precedent and the greatest care must be exercised to proceed legally. Never before has a province of Canada been called upon to give up a prisoner to an Australian colony, and the experience gained in such matters by the local authorities in their dealings with American cases are of no value. Canada and New South Wales are under the same ruler, are part of the same country logically, and the present case will be very similar to transferring a case from Ontario to British Columbia, or from Oregon to California in the United States. Sergeant Forbes is armed with a warrant properly sworn to before Magistrate Isaacs in Sydney and duly endorsed on the back by Sir Robert Duff, governor of New South Wales, and sealed with the great seal of the colony. The question with the police is as to whether Magistrate Macrae can turn him over to Sergeant Forbes or a justice of the supreme court will have to make the order. The matter is being looked up, and by the time the steamship Arawa is ready to start south again everything will be in apple pie order.

Bollman has $2300 hidden away somewhere or in the keeping of a friend. On the way up Mr. Forbes stopped at the Hawaiian hotel at Honolulu, and was told by the clerk that Bollman when there deposited 570 pounds sterling, or about $2800, for safe keeping. He drew it a short time before he sailed on the Warrimoo, and it is certain that he did not spend it before he got aboard the boat. When arrested here he had only 117 pounds on his person, and with tears in his eyes told Chief Sheppard that a second thief had robbed him in Apia, Samoa.

"That man Bollman is a terrible liar," said Chief Sheppard, as he sat in his office this morning talking to Mr. Forbes and a Times man. "Yes, he is a fearful liar," said Mr. Forbes. "Why, that gold watch he said he paid $80 for and the chain he said cost him $30 were bought in Sydney on the credit of the firm and not paid for at all. I saw the bill for them the day before I left Sydney. I believe that Bollman had some travelling companion on the Warrimoo to whom he entrusted the money, for I know he had $2800 at Honolulu, seven days before he got here." Chief Sheppard said: "I tried him in every way, but he stuck to his story. Detective Lees of San Francisco had an idea that Bollman might have sent the missing money on by postal order or by a draft mailed to himself at Victoria, Vancouver or one of the sound cities, but I have no hopes that this theory will prove correct."

The officers have little idea where the money is, and it is unlikely that it will ever be found.

Sergeant Forbes brings the news that Bollman had an accomplice in the robbery in the person of a man named Day, who was also in the employ of Henckler & Co. Day was arrested at Sydney and has been committed for trial. Bollman told Mr. Forbes on Saturday night that Day was innocent, but he may be lying about that. Bollman got away from Australia in good shape. He told his colleagues in the office that he was going to Germany with the firm's money. He gave a dinner party, and his friends saw him to the depot, where he was going to catch the train for Goldburn to catch the P. & O. steamship. The farewell was a touching one. His friends shook hands with him and wished him Godspeed to the Fatherland. He went up the line 80 miles, sneaked back through Sydney, caught the Mariposa as Frederick Eberhard, and was by New Zealand before the cable could catch him. He got away with all of the $6,000, for he drew the money from the bank nearly all in gold. It does not appear how much money Day got, but Sergeant Forbes says that there is strong evidence against him.

Sergeant Forbes is a middle-aged man, a native of England, and has lived in Australia for many years. He is an affable man and is a typical officer.

LACROSSE.

WILL PLAY AT VANCOUVER.

The final match in the senior championship series, which decides the championship of 1894, is to be played at Vancouver on Saturday between Victoria and Westminster. Both teams are working hard and conscientiously, and the match will be undoubtedly one of the best ever played in British Columbia. Victoria will have the same team that has played all season, while Westminster will be strengthened by Spain of Vancouver. To give all an opportunity to attend, the Victoria lacrosse club has chartered the Islander for the occasion and has placed the fare at $1 for the round trip. It is expected that fully one thousand Victorians will go up, as everybody is taking a keen interest in the event. The Islander will leave Victoria at 7 a.m. sharp, and returning, will leave Vancouver at 7 p.m., arriving home at midnight, so that the excursionists will be away from home but one day.

THE TURF.

MORE RECORD SMASHING.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 14.—Ten thousand people attended the races here on Saturday. Online's performance, in his attempt to beat his record of 2:07 1-4, was the feature. At 5 o'clock the four-year-old appeared on the track, which was in good condition, and scarcely a breeze was stowing. Chandler drove Online and the runner Cheerful, driven by Ed Geers, acted as pacemaker. The first quarter was made in 32 seconds, half in 1:03, three-quarters in 1:39, and the mile in 2:04, breaking the world's four-year-old pacing record. Justine, owned by H. B. Watson, of Council Bluffs, dropped dead on the track after finishing the third heat of the 2:25 trot.

The four-year-old pacing record broken by Online was that of William Wood, at Stockton, Cal., Oct. 29, 1892, 2:07. Online is a great horse. As a two-year-old he broke the record, and his time stood until two months ago, when Directly lowered it.

THE RING.

FLORIDA OBJECTS.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 14.—Unless there shall be a radical change in public sentiment, there will be no opposition to the proposed fight here between Corbett and Fitzsimmons. Mr. Richardson, one of the principal backers of the Florida Athletic Club, is reported to have said that the club has been given inside assurance that they have nothing to fear from the legislature. Some surprise is felt at a publication in the Citizen to-day, a paper which took no stand in opposition to the Corbett-Mitchell fight when it was pending, as follows:

"Allow us to say right now that the so-called preliminaries of the so-called glove contest might as well be abandoned right now. Jacksonville is not a candidate for any further notoriety in this line. The scientific contests, as the parlance of the ring has it, are nothing less than brutal prizefights, in which one of the individuals undertakes to punch the other fellow's head off, according to certain fixed rules. As soon as the legislature of next spring shall have organized and some member can get the attention of the speaker we shall have an iron-clad anti-prizefight law that will cover every phase of this subject. There is no mistake about this, and Messrs. Corbett and Fitzsimmons may prepare to take their show to some less civilized and more lawless country."

New Orleans, Oct. 14.—In answer to a query whether the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight would be allowed on Florida soil, the following reply was received from Governor Mitchell: "Corbett and Fitzsimmons will not be allowed to meet in Florida, even if the legislature has to be convened for the purpose of preventing the fight."

Buffalo, Oct. 14.—Champion James J. Corbett said to-night that he would agree to every change in the articles prepared by Fitzsimmons, except that the fight must be for the championship belt.

"It's a valuable belt," said he, "and I want it. This will be my last fight, win or lose. I will not let a thing stand in the way of this fight. If the Florida club cannot pull it off, I will agree to New Orleans."

THE CUE.

SCHAEFFER AND IVES.

New York, Oct. 15.—Four weeks from to-night at the concert hall of the Madison Square garden a six nights' billiard match between Ives and Schaeffer will begin. Ives will begin practicing to-morrow at Maurice Daly's old room at 192 Broadway, which he has rented for a month. Schaeffer will practice in Chicago. "Abe" Levy stand ready to place $10,000 on Ives. The latter, who is about $3,000 ahead of the races, says he will bet all of his winnings at Morris Park on himself. Schaeffer's popularity and the fact that last winter he defeated Ives in the big match at Chicago and in the tournament here, will bring him heavy backing outside of his immediate friends. "Dick Roche" does not hesitate about telling his friends to bet on "Jake." Fournell, the French expert, has been playing brilliant, but not steady billiards, at Maurice Daly's. He has had a remarkable stroke, his draws and spreads being remarkable, while his nursing on the balk line is better than ever before witnessed in the United States. He may appear in matches and tournaments with Slosson and Daly as opponents.

NANAIMO NEWS.

Search Party Unable to Find the Allen Brothers.

Nanaimo, Oct. 15.—The search party, consisting of Messrs. W. E. Webb, A. G. Horne and Chris Jacobson, returned early yesterday morning after an unsuccessful attempt to discover the whereabouts of the Allen brothers and Thomas Mahurn. The search party left Nanaimo on Thursday morning by the steamer Esperanza. The first place of call was Lasquiti Island, and then to the north of Texada, past Henderson marble quarry, keeping close to the shore in the hope that they might get news of the missing men. Then the course of the steamer was altered to Gillmet quarry, where there were plenty of men at work but on questioning them as to whether they had seen the canoe they replied in the negative. The party were informed that two sloops lay in a little bay further up the coast. The course of the steamer was again altered, but on arriving at the bay both vessels had apparently slipped their anchors. A little later on the sloop Falcon was spoken but no news could be obtained. A man came out of the bush and put off to the steamer, but like the others met with he could give no information of any account. Captain Lewis' house was sighted at dusk and Mr. A. G. Horne and Chris Jacobson went on shore to make enquiries, as the missing men could not get to Gordon Lake without passing his house. Capt. Lewis was not home, but three of his sons had only returned from the lake the day previous and they were positive that the Allen brothers had not been there and neither had they seen any sign of their canoe. They were also positive that no white men nor Indians were up there. Mr. Horne felt confident information of any account. Captain Lewis they would have been well treated as he is known to be the white man's friend. The steam railway logging camp was next made and thence to Powell river where the canoes were supposed to be concealed, that the Allens employed on a previous occasion. The place was examined by the trio of searchers but no sign of the canoes could be discovered. The mission was next made but the priest being away, Peter, the Indian chief, informed the party that he had not seen any white men at the lake, but he volunteered the information that lots of white men had lately gone up to Bute Inlet. Finding it was now useless searching further, the steamer was headed for Nanaimo. On their way to Nanaimo they called at the lime quarry on Texada Island, and here they gleaned the information that the missing men had never been there, but that it was another party entirely. Indians were met with who had been fishing on the gulf for some time had not seen them. The steamer encountered a gale during her passage across the gulf. The party thanked Mr. Forman and R. Byers for the courtesy and assistance given them during the trip. Should a larger party organized the service of Mr. A. G. Horne will be invaluable as he is well acquainted with the whole of the country.

An inquest was held on the body of Caroline Scott on Saturday by Coroner Plasin. The inquest was held at the instance of Dr. McKechnie who attended the deceased prior to her death. The husband of the deceased gave evidence of her sickness from vomiting and pains in the stomach and to the calling in of Dr. McKechnie. A box of "Rough on Rats" was produced which had been found in the house about a quarter full. Witness said it had been used by him to poison mice and as far as he knew it had not been otherwise touched. Dr. McKechnie, in his evidence, said he was unable to give positively the cause of death but from a post mortem examination he had held, there was every appearance of some irritant poison in the stomach and bowels. Dr. McKechnie was of opinion that a thorough analysis of the stomach should be made by an expert.

The jury found deceased came to her death from causes of which there was not sufficient evidence before them to come to any conclusion. The jury recommended that the public analyst make an examination of the stomach of deceased. The body was interred yesterday.
